Course summary

This free-course developed the English reading and writing skills needed to succeed for studying a university degree. It introduced academic reading and effective note-making strategies, developed essay writing skills, explored academic styles and vocabulary-building strategies, and enhanced the understanding of sentence structure and punctuation.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- follow an active reading method to help them read academic texts and make notes
- critically read source texts and appropriately use the information they contain in their writing
- link ideas in their writing so that their readers can easily understand their ideas
- make use of vocabulary and grammatical structures to express themselves more formally
- make the most of online dictionaries and look at ways to record new words for future use
- understand how to organise and punctuate sentences to increase clarity.
